

The Centre for European Policy Studies (CEPS), a Brussels-based European policy research institute, has a vacancy for a

Senior Research Fellow/Research Fellow

The CEPS Digital Forum is a multi-stakeholder platform aimed at stimulating the debate on the EU's Digital Agenda. It hosts both high-level policy debates and more technical discussions, with a view to provide a concrete contribution to the development of smart solutions for the Digital Single Market. Currently, the Forum has launched four working groups on "Developing a smart, sustainable and inclusive Internet"; "Spectrum policy and the European Wireless Broadband Space"; "Protecting critical information infrastructure; and "The economics of cloud computing". Four new working groups will be launched in 2012. In light of these developments and of the increasing workload needed to manage the various activities of the Forum, we are now hiring a senior research fellow/research fellow with the following qualifications:

- PhD or at least 10 years of experience after the achievement of a degree giving access to doctoral studies, in a relevant subject (preferably economics)
- Proven competence in the field of media, electronic communications regulation, the EU digital agenda.
- Outstanding communication skills in English (written and oral).
- Ability to translate research findings into concrete policy recommendations.

The successful candidate will be required to:

- Monitor developments in electronic communications regulation and the EU digital agenda.
- Write independently, blog and publish in the areas covered by the EU Digital Agenda.
- Initiate and coordinate working parties aimed at producing policy recommendations.
- Manage and supervise a team of younger researcher
- Supervise the content of the CEPS Digital Forum blog and post comments on a regular basis.
- Network and liaise with the relevant CEPS constituencies
- Contribute, when appropriate, to research projects of the CEPS Regulatory Policy Unit

The post could start as early as 1 March 2012. Remuneration will be competitive and will depend on the qualifications of the successful candidate.

A leading think tank, CEPS offers an attractive and stimulating professional and multi-cultural environment. Further information on our activities can be found at www.ceps.eu and at www.digitalform.eu.

Applications, including a CV and covering letter, should be sent by 15 February 2012 to:
